▲ THE UMASI COLLECTION

Wells Mason of Ironwood Industries—a wood and metal studio near Austin specializing in furniture and sculpture—is the artist and principal designer behind the Umasi Collection, a line of tables, chairs, benches, decorative objects and sculpture that he creates in collaboration with his wife, Jessica. Their materials of choice: Repurposed items like scrap steel, discarded telephone poles, abandoned trampoline parts, salvaged ship masts, old bicycle frames, crushed aluminum cans and lumber from demolished buildings.

The finished designs, which blur the line between furniture and art, have graced showrooms, galleries and museums around the country. The Umasi Collection is ever-growing and ever-changing, with pieces always in stock and in progress. wellsmason.com
